Businesswoman Thrives in Male-Dominated Realms

Julie Hill Combined Drive, Dream to Defy Naysayers

By DEIRDRE NEWMAN

“Pretty little girls like you become bitches-on-wheels if you go into business.”

That’s what Julie Hill remembers her high school guidance counselor telling her in the 1960s. She had told him she wanted to go into business, and he tried to direct her into teaching. Instead of discouraging her from pursuing her chosen career path, the comment engendered a sense of “righteous anger” that fueled her career, she said. That career has taken her from creating and selling land development companies to the boardrooms of Fortune 50 companies, such as Indianapolis-based Anthem Insurance Companies Inc.

“It’s a stereotype about women,” Hill said, referring to the guidance counselor’s comment. “And very surprisingly, it still exists today. It’s utterly frustrating.”

She now channels that frustration into mentoring and encouraging women through informal guidance and involvement in a number of organizations, including West Palm Beach, Fla.-based The Women Corporate Directors Foundation. She’s on a mission, she said, to get more women in the pipeline for board positions and C-suite offices.

Another passionate pursuit is trying to get companies to realize that it’s important to focus on two things: corporate profits and raising good kids, that they’re not mutually exclusive.

She also tries to inspire businesses to be a force for good in the world, as evidenced by her work with groups such as the B-Team, a global nonprofit initiative co-founded by Richard Branson and Jochen Zeitz that brings together chief executives and business leaders from across the world to “make business work better,” and Leader’s Quest, a social enterprise that works with leaders to create a more equitable and sustainable world.

She’s also channelled her business acumen into the boards of nonprofit organizations, including Irvine-based Human Options, which serves domestic violence victims. In May, she takes over the reins of the University of California-Irvine Foundation.

Stereotype vs. Desire

Hill grew up in Colton in San Bernardino County. She received a scholarship to attend the University of California-Los Angeles. She majored in English since her high school counselor had suggested something traditional and “lady-like,” she said, though business still fascinated her. It seemed “creative” and an opportunity to bring “something good into the world that people need,” she said.

Hill fulfilled requirements for her degree in her junior year and took mostly business classes as a senior. The school didn’t offer a structured business minor at the time, she said. A few years later, she accompanied a romantic interest to Illinois, where, despite her determination to avoid the guidance counselor’s advice, she taught school for a few years. She soon realized that, sure enough, teaching wasn’t her calling. And it didn’t quench her thirst for business. She found her way to the University of Georgia, where she received a master’s degree in marketing to get back on the business track.

The Atlanta real estate market was “in the tank” when she graduated in 1975. Several banks had repossessed high-rise condo buildings and were having liquidation sales. At a cocktail party one evening, she met an area banker who said his institution had a lot of real estate and didn’t know what to do with it. “I said, ‘I can handle that for you,’” she said. “I have a marketing company.”

She actually didn’t have a marketing company but formed one that weekend and started business the following Monday, handling the bank’s real estate for five years. “I taught myself (how to do it),” she said. “I just figured I would try it. The worst thing I could do was fail. He was desperate, and it worked.”

She then decided to apply her skills to an area of the country that excelled at land planning due to understanding the value of market research. The two places she identified were the Reston, Va.-Columbia, Md. area and the Irvine Ranch area of OC. She chose the latter.

Building a Career

She worked for two former merchant builders—capital partners to conventional builders who want to share in the development profit and assume a portion of the risk—on the ranch for four years and was then recruited by a headhunter to move back to Atlanta for a senior executive position with Mobil Oil division Mobil Land Development Corp.

She said she got the itch to move back to Orange County after four years and took a job as president and chief executive of Costain Homes, a division of London-based Costain Group PLC, which she worked for from 1991 to 1998.

She then created Hiram-Hill Development, a land-development company in Newport Beach, and sold pieces of the business to different banks.

Women in Business

OC CITIES, EMPLOYEES, INDUSTRIES

Charts show female-owned businesses in Orange County at the end of the first quarter—the 10 cities with the most companies owned by women, the range of employee totals at all of them, and the top industries they’re in. Researcher Inside Prospects Inc. found 16,576 women-owned businesses in OC, with 116,257 workers.

The U.S. Census and National Women’s Business Council report that one-third of OC privately held firms are female-owned and that those with at least one paid employee combine for $18 billion in revenue and $4.3 billion in payroll annually.
Wells Fargo has long worked to enable women in business. In fact, since 1995, Wells Fargo has loaned over $55.8 billion to women business owners.

With our breadth of services, our relationship approach, and our goal of becoming the commercial bank for women-owned and women-led businesses, Wells Fargo is dedicated to helping women succeed financially — in business and personally.

Mom’s Love for Baby Inspired Specialized Line

LulyBoo Creator’s Naïveté Powered Her Through Snags

By MEDHIA DIMARTINO

They say that what you don’t know won’t hurt you, or in Pazit Benezri’s case, stifle her entrepreneurial spirit. She founded LulyBoo in 2008 after creating a portable baby bassinet her infant son preferred to nap in. The innovative product, which folds into a backpack, got thumbs-ups from retail buyers from the get-go, but it took another five years and numerous lessons learned for the Lake Forest-based business to become profitable.

“I’m glad nobody told me how long it takes to really have the item in the market, and for the business to start to make money,” said Benezri, chief executive. “If I knew from the beginning … I would probably shut (everything) off and not do the business. I really threw myself out there, step by step, and got excited from every little success.”

Her patience—or naïveté—paid off. LulyBoo products are now sold at every major retailer, including Walmart, Target Corp., Amazon.com, buybuy Baby and Geoffrey LLC’s Babies R Us. The private company doesn’t disclose its financials, but Benezri said sales have doubled every year since its inception. The LulyBoo “lounges” range from $39 to $79, including LulyZoo, a toddler version of the product. Next month, it plans to introduce a travel line, ModCot, that will bring its product offering to about 20. The “carrycot” weighs less than 4 pounds and is “designed to make travel easy for parents while providing comfort for baby anywhere, any time,” she said.

LulyBoo shares an office building and warehouse space with Imex Vision LLC, a paper food and beverage packaging company that Benezri’s husband, Nati, founded in 2006. LulyBoo employs 15, including a China office that oversees sourcing and manufacturing.

“When we are making a high-end product that needs to be 100% clean,” she said. “The seams should be perfect, so we need someone there in the factory.”

Startup Days

Benezri contracted Classic Quilting in Santa Ana to manufacture the inaugural line, which debuted in 2009 at the ABC Kids Expo in Las Vegas. The tradeshow netted zero sales but plenty of feedback.

Hill

Hill also sits on the board of directors of the Lord Abbett Family of Funds, part of Jersey City, N.J.-based Lord Abbett & Co. LLC, and was the first woman to head the board of Australia-based Lendlease Corp., a multinational property and infrastructure company. During her six years on the Lendlease board, she traveled to about 40 countries to talk to company executives about best practices for gender equality in the workplace, bringing some of the world’s experts along with her, such as Lynda Gratton, a British organizational theorist, consultant and professor of management practice at London Business School.

Her involvement with Human Options is part of Hill’s overarching theme of giving women a voice.

“Domestic violence is domestic terrorism,” she said. “I didn’t sell anything, but I learned so much.”

She said, adding that she had the chance to size up the competition and talk to retailers who wanted to see a variety of designs, and thought her product was overpriced.

“I tried to make the item here in the U.S., and then I realized that it’s just not going to work because the cost of the production left her only breaking even instead of making a profit.

Benezri bootstrapped the company and got technical support from the Orange County chapter of SCORE, a nonprofit association whose volunteers—usually retired executives—help small businesses get off the ground. Mentors worked with her on “marketing, financing, accounting, insurance, sales pitches, operations, social media strategies and trademark/patent decisions.”

Benezri, aside from retailers’ buyers and the former business pro, also turned to word-of-mouth recommendations.

The market changed since I started,” she said. “People moved to shop more online, to read product reviews, to follow bloggers and their recommendations. We are not doing a lot of advertising. Most of the sales are coming from word-of-mouth recommendations.”

LulyBoo is “working with a very big group of moms” in Orange County, Los Angeles and San Diego who are invited to test the products and brainstorm with Benezri’s team on “how to make it better, what’s missing, is the (packaging) message clear, how much would you pay for this item.”

“You need to think about the customer you are selling to,” she said. “Ask people, ‘Where are you reading reviews? What makes you buy or not buy a specific item?’ and really go with that. I really believe that your customers know what they are looking for.”

Operations

LulyBoo values digital feedback but doesn’t have its own e-commerce website—Benezri said she doesn’t want to compete with retailers.

She took her line overseas about two years ago to Turkey, Brazil, Mexico, Canada, and is about to enter Japan. Lessons learned from international expansion include finding the right distribution partner.

“Many contacted us, but we were really picky about choosing a very good one,” Benezri said. “It’s only going to work if they believe in the brand.”

The company is named after Benezri’s daughter, Meshi, now 14, whose nickname is Luly.

“We also tried to combine words for playtime and sleep time,” she said adding “Luly, as in lullaby, and Boo, like peekaboo.”

The Future

Benezri, despite challenges, still isn’t afraid to dream big.

“I want every mom in the market to know about the brand,” she said. “We are working hard and always thinking about the next step. My tip (for up and coming business owners) is don’t stay where you are. Think about where you want to be in a year or two, what items (you are selling) and start working toward it. If you are not growing in the business, I feel like you are going backwards. You need to be creative, and you need to invest in the business.”

Benezri has four children, including a 10-month-old boy. Being a female entrepreneur and a mom is “the best combination,” which gives her “the freedom to balance my schedule doing the two things I love: creating and being a parent. What more could I ask for?”

Her brother, Jeff Kincaid, will also be a passenger. She said he worked for NASA contractors on the design of all of the U.S. space shuttles, which have recently been retired. The siblings paid $200,000 each to ride on the historic flight.

She signed up for the adventure about six years ago and has done zero-gravity training at a Philadelphia facility where fighter pilots train, as well as centrifugal force training to prepare for 3G and 6G forces. She will undergo weightlessness training in advance of floating in the cabin.

“I want to be part of it because it will be a thrill, and thrills are good,” she said. “And I suppose it is consistent with my attitude in life in general … take risks, stay challenged, and enjoy the results. It is certainly what made me keep moving forward in my career.”

SBS payroll™
Now is the time to plan for your legacy

By Laura Deng, Private Wealth Advisor

Congratulations to the Orange County Business Journal’s Women In Business honorees. Thank you for your leadership and dedication—we appreciate how much your efforts help sustain the health of our local Orange County economy. This strong commitment can sometimes mean that personal planning takes a backseat, including legacy planning. As you look ahead to the coming year, consider that now, regardless of age, is a good time to determine how you would like your finances handled as part of your estate plan.

“When your children are adequately prepared, they become good stewards of what they have been given.”
— Marcella Solorzano, Regional Manager, The Private Bank at Union Bank

Over the next three decades, more than $30 trillion in assets will shift from one generation to the next, as baby boomers pass on their legacies to children. While those who plan ahead can look forward to a predictable transition of wealth to individuals and charities, the reality is many are not prepared for this transfer. There are a variety of different reasons for putting off estate planning. Some believe their children are too young or it is too early in their lives to plan, while others feel their family situations are too complex. However, the risks of not planning are very real. Those without plans risk probate issues, unsuitable custody of children, lengthy settlements, unnecessarily high estate taxes, mismanagement of assets, beneficiary disputes, and lack of control over end-of-life decisions.

If you need an estate plan, these five steps can help you begin the process.

1. Start Planning. Marcella Solorzano of The Private Bank at Union Bank recommends parents discuss planning and wealth transfer as early as possible with their children. “By laying the solid foundation, your children understand and appreciate money for what it is: an incredible tool that can fuel their greatest ambitions and support causes that are important to them. They learn to invest wisely so they can pass a legacy on to their own children and grandchildren.”

2. Engage and Share. In their book, Preparing Heirs: Five Steps to a Successful Transition of Family Wealth and Values, Roy Williams and Vic Preissler illustrate a breakdown in family trust and communication for most estate transfer failures. To prepare heirs, they suggest engaging them in open communication and shared decision-making. Give them financial context for their inheritance and foster a culture of achievement and independence. By the time they inherit, your heirs have a mature, healthy attitude toward money that serves them well.

3. Have a Family Meeting. A cornerstone of successful multigenerational planning is open dialogue, in which parents and children share their visions for the family. Ideally, this takes place at a group meeting with the whole family present. Include all family members to emphasize that planning is for the good of both parents and children. It may also help to have a trusted advisor present to serve as an impartial voice.

4. Discuss Personal Property Wishes. Who will receive dad’s watch? Mom’s silver? Misunderstandings about treasured items can sour family relationships and lead to lawsuits. Have frank conversations to determine each heir’s preferences for sentimental items—the more open the dialogue, the better.

5. Seek the Help of Professionals. Multigenerational planning can be complex. After you have an initial conversation within the family, involve a trusted attorney, estate planner, and/or wealth strategist who can help you put a plan in place. A wealth strategist can also discuss the importance of the trustee as well as tax and gifting strategies to make the transition smooth and efficient.

Regardless of age or complexity of a family situation, it’s never too soon or late for legacy planning. Parents and children who communicate openly about their wishes and needs can enjoy peace of mind that a mutually understood plan is in place for the future.

Wills, trusts, foundations and wealth planning strategies have legal, tax, accounting and other implications. Clients should consult a legal or tax advisor.

Ensuring Compliance with Changing Laws and Regulations
In just the last few months, there have been changes to the California minimum wage, FUTA credits affecting how much more California employers have to pay, and the implementation of new FLSA overtime rules that were later halted by a federal judge.

How to Keep Up
You’ve got two choices to keep up with all of these changes:
► Dedicate one to two staff members to monitor, implement and comply with all labor law news.
► Rely on a partner to keep up with them for you and to let you know when you need to make changes and who can also help you make these changes

Buyer Beware
If you choose the latter, just make sure you understand how they keep up with changes themselves, how they communicate these changes and how many communications they’ve sent out in the last six months. Many payroll providers claim to have this capability but the devil is in the details.

Doing More with Less
Organizations of all kinds, from businesses to government agencies to nonprofits, all have to do more with less. How can technology be leveraged to do more with less in HR and processing payroll?

Employee Self-Service
From on-boarding to updating contact and banking information to vacation requests to signing off on the new employee handbook, having employees make updates themselves can give HR a major productivity boost – especially by avoiding data entry and the headache of the inevitable mistakes. Just say “no” to managing this information in email, Post-It notes and cocktail napkins.

Workflow Automation
From simple automated reminders to streamlining onboarding and benefits enrollment, workflow automation software can increase productivity by 50% or more.

Being reminded to collect new and expired I-9s, to update credentials and for managers to approve requests also helps to ensure legal and regulatory compliance.

HCM Software and Effective Decision Making
Human resource information systems (HRIS) followed by human resource management systems (HRMS) were developed to be a repository of employee and other HR information.

Today, HRIS and HRMS represent HR databases and just a part of human capital management (HCM) software. HCM also includes payroll, benefits administration, and time and attendance tracking. Instead of siloed databases, HCM includes executive dashboards, reporting and analytics so that management can make decisions anytime without needing someone to manually run a report and email it to them every time they have a question.

Document Management and Storage
HCM also includes document management and storage so that employee files can be searched and retrieved quickly, from anywhere that authorized employees have access rather than having to search through file cabinets, hard drives or shared drives.

Payroll Integration
California businesses often run payroll out of multiple systems: information is exported from their HRIS/HRMS software, organized and modified in Excel, and then imported to their accounting software. Depending on the number of employees, we often see HR spending 4-5 hours per pay period or more being spent to do this process manually.

With HCM software, all payroll information is already in the system, and with a simple export to your general ledger in QuickBooks, you can avoid the manual processing in Excel and conduct payroll in a fraction of the time it takes today.

Tips for Success
We recommend that you make sure to have your prospective payroll and HCM partner provide an estimate of the professional services involved to set everything up. A significant amount of time may be required, so it’s important to understand up-front costs and how long it will take to see a positive return on investment (ROI).

We also recommend that those in HR who will use the HCM see a demo before you decide which HCM is right for you to evaluate ease-of-use. This will stimulate their buy-in of the new software and minimize resistance, the latter of which is one of the main reasons why new software implementations fail.

If your company is growing, you’ll also want to make sure the HCM system can handle your current workforce as well as what you expect in the next three years. One of the national payroll providers has three separate payroll software systems for small, mid-sized and large organizations that do not scale or work together.

Lastly, it’s far more cost-effective when your payroll provider charges on a per active employee, per month basis rather than a flat fee per payroll.

Engaging the Millennial Workforce
Though you may not be feeling this one yet, effectively engaging Millennials will be key to the success of many Southern California organizations for decades to come.

Approximately 73 million Millennials were born between 1980 and 1996, and they are expected to comprise about 50% of the U.S. workforce in 2020 and 75% of the global workforce by 2030.

Millennials Want More
“Are Millennials getting what they want out of work and life? Not so much,” concluded Gallup as part of their recent report, How Millennials Want to Work and Live. Gallup found that Millennials struggle to find good jobs that engage them and only 29% of employed Millennials are engaged at work.

How to Engage Millennials
Millennials are the most tech savvy generation yet to enter the workforce. They’ve probably never faxed anything and wonder why there is so much paper in a digital world. They also expect intuitive cloud software to get their work done in the office or remotely.

Which of the following do you think is a better way to engage Millennials?
► With a paper-based on-boarding process and clunky on-premises HRIS/HRMS software
► With paperless processes, cloud-based HCM software and mobile-friendly access

The answer not only creates stronger engagement with the Millennial workforce but is also crucial for doing more with less from all employee generations.

Three days ago, at a cloudy January day, I was mid-phone call with the CFO of an Orange County landscaping company. She’s a client, friend, and someone to whom I confide my professional challenges. We were confirming our plans to meet later that week for something we both looked forward to: a pedicure at an Irvine spa where we regularly meet.

What I would soon come to learn is this: Something as ordinary as a pedicure can be an extraordinary opportunity for leadership development, and ultimately, my career.

Three days later, we sat side by side, our feet soaking in warm bubbly water, watching the cars drive by on Irvine Center Drive. The sky was still a dreary grey, but the spa was warm with soft light and smelled of lavender. It was the perfect atmosphere for us to relax and be slightly delirious as we relived the hectic work week. Our conversation drifted to a regular topic: challenges women face in the workplace.

I'm fortunate in my career. I work for a company that has promoted the advancement of women and women executives for the past century. Also, in my role as a Wells Fargo commercial banking relationship manager, I have the opportunity to work with leaders of local Orange County businesses. So, the topic of leadership is ordinarily discussed. This is to be expected. It's important to my clients, and it's important to me. In sharing my own experiences and listening to others detail their challenges, I saw a pattern: We struggle with similar problems and find our way to comparable solutions. It's my honor to share with you here this crowdsourced wisdom.

Here are the top five pieces of advice that have helped sharpen my leadership skills:

1. Be transparent about your problems
   In today’s business climate, being a woman with career and leadership aspirations is a lot to balance. Learn how to raise your hand when you have an issue. This was difficult for me, because I thought talking about my problems signified weakness. It doesn’t. I expected judgment from my peers. Instead, they empathized with my struggles and wanted to help. This is especially true today, with my peers and younger generations of women. So much of what we see online and through social media is filtered by rose-colored glasses to remove any signs of personal and professional struggle. Yet it’s impossible for others to help if they are unaware of your problem. Be real in sharing your struggles. It helps people open up and have real conversations.

2. Open communication is your friend
   I had a mentor early in my career who taught me to be open and honest with others. Open communication allows you to step back and look at the bigger picture. If you can communicate openly, people are more likely to understand your point of view and better understand your motives. As I began to practice speaking openly, something unexpected began to happen: I received thoughtful feedback from others. The more candid the feedback I gave, the better the dialog.

3. Create your support system
   In my position, I’m very fortunate to see clients of all backgrounds and heritage. What’s surprising is that I hear the same want: the need for female CEO networks. My clients are constantly looking for a support system of peers. Women in the workplace face unique challenges and often struggle to create balance. They want to share their learnings and tribulations with peers. When I struggle with my own balance, I think back to my support system and who I can turn to for help. My advice: Always reach out, and ask for connections. Other leaders are always looking to build their networks. At some point in a career, everyone needs a support system. If you don’t ask, you can’t build.

4. Remember the young leaders
   In recent years, I’ve noticed more transparency and conversations about women’s struggles. There is improvement, yet we still have a long way to go. For many of my clients, the issue extends beyond transparency into a different problem: young women in leadership positions. The pipeline of up-and-coming female leaders is a trickle. Established leaders want to connect with and support young leaders in addition to their high-level peers. This can be difficult to find in the business community. I’ve asked many times about this, and the root of the issue is an age-old problem: Women are less likely to apply for a position unless they are 100% sure they meet the qualifications. I’m guilty myself. We stay put, because it’s comfortable, and we would rather be comfortable than approach failure. The imperative is clear: Let’s encourage other women to step out of their comfort zones and assume more responsibility, even if they feel they are not 100% qualified.

5. Company culture counts
   Many studies show that when women are part of an organization’s leadership, the organization performs considerably better than its competitors without. And I will add that our communities function more efficient when corporations embrace gender diversity. This is why Wells Fargo has promoted women’s advancement and women executives for the past century. Historically, women have a keen ability to engender trust and build relationships, two important qualities in an influential leader. One of my clients said he understands the importance of having women on his team, because they think about problems and solutions differently than men. You get a fuller picture with gender diversity, he added. Doing your part and making sure you advocate for gender diversity in your industry, company, and team will create momentum for future leaders. We all can make a positive impact on our companies, and we are all in this together.

Back at the salon, with our freshly painted toes drying, we came up with an idea: Use our spa time for a bigger networking event. We are expanding our regular meet-up to include other local women leaders in Orange County who are looking to build their networks while treating themselves to a pedicure.

There is still a lot of work to do in promoting and positioning women as transformational leaders in the workplace. With this network, we want to take a small step in making a difference for our leaders’ right here in Orange County to provide a place for women to hear and learn from other successful female leaders, all while getting a pedicure.

I also believe that when women come together, something unique and powerful happens. All of a sudden, we are more energized and inspired to take lessons learned back to our organizations to make a lasting impact on ourselves and those around us. Take something that’s ordinary, and turn it in to your own extraordinary.

Villa Real Estate Offers Premier Residential Real Estate Service

Villa Real Estate, one of Orange County’s top luxury residential real estate firms, was founded with a vision to provide unparalleled service to its clients, with unsurpassed local expertise from its agents. Villa ensures exceptional real estate representation for both buyers and sellers, with its seasoned team of professionals, coupled with innovative technology and highly personalized marketing support.

Since its founding in 2013, Villa has expanded to over 150 agents and four office locations in Newport Center, Corona del Mar, Balboa Peninsula and Laguna Beach, to become one of Southern California’s most successful and fastest growing luxury residential brokerage firms. All the while, Villa remains committed to hand selecting the most accomplished and attentive real estate professionals who are committed to providing their clients with premier customer service.

Unmatched Service
Part of what sets Villa apart from other luxury residential brokerage firms is the level of services and support provided to agents, for the benefit of marketing their clients’ homes. Villa operates an acclaimed full-service, in-house advertising agency to support the agents’ marketing needs with maximum efficiency and unsurpassed customer service.

Villa’s creative services staff consists of top marketing professionals with extensive experience in marketing luxury real estate. This group uses thoughtful design and coordinates all custom print materials from brochures to listing presentations and more, ensuring a professional presentation to clients and the marketplace.

The vast majority of homebuyers and sellers begin their real estate journey online, and no other regional residential brokerage firm has the powerhouse web presence – locally, regionally, and internationally – that Villa Real Estate does. Villa’s leadership and marketing teams have extensive backgrounds not just in luxury residential real estate, but in marketing and technology as well, which combine for beautiful marketing materials created quickly, allowing the client’s home to go on the market as soon as possible. Villa Real Estate also has a strategic partnership with Who’s Who in Luxury Real Estate, which is a network of real estate professionals across the globe who collectively sell in excess of $190 billion annually, with an average sales price of $2,450,000 per transaction.

LuxuryRealEstate.com has been the top portal for luxury properties around the world since 1995. Through Villa’s alliance with Luxury Real Estate, agents can easily market their properties to reach potential buyers in over 40 countries, offering unprecedented exposure for listings.

In any industry, there is no substitute for great service, but particularly in real estate, as a home is typically the largest purchase a person will ever make. In luxury residential real estate, where transactions have high financial and emotional impact, it is critical to have agents who provide dedicated client service, establish and cultivate trust, and excel in negotiations and communication with the client.

Villa Real Estate agents are selected not only for their outstanding sales productivity, but also for their proven track records in delivering stellar client service that goes above and beyond the typical real estate transaction. Villa Real Estate clients can expect proactive, responsive, attentive and personal service throughout the buying and selling process. Every agent’s goal is to ensure a smooth transaction that meets the needs of each client, from buying or selling a first home, a multi-million dollar oceanfront estate, or an investment rental property.

Unique Listings
Villa Real Estate is known for having some of the most beautiful luxury residential real estate listings along Orange County’s coastline. From Newport Coast and Crystal Cove, to Emerald Bay and beyond, Villa has handled some of the area’s most notable transactions, including record sales in the most sought-after neighborhoods.

The Wall Street Journal was among the international press that recently featured 27 Emerald Bay in Laguna Beach, a vacation home owned by Warren Buffett. Known as the “Oracle of Omaha,” Buffett listed the home with Bill Dolby of Villa Real Estate after having owned it for nearly 50 years. Another stunning listing with Villa is 92 Emerald Bay, an extraordinary oceanfront property that offers sweeping views of the Pacific. At more than 6,000 square feet, this home is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to own in the coveted front row of this exclusive Laguna Beach enclave.

In addition to a portfolio of premier listings, Villa has handled transactions that have set sales records at the time of closing in communities including Dover Shores, Lido Isle, Crystal Cove, and others. With a successful team of industry experts committed to the highest level of customer service, Villa Real Estate is truly coastal Orange County’s premier residential real estate firm.

As Chief Medical Officer at Lindora Clinic, Dr. Amy Lee knows firsthand the serious health complications suffered by people who struggle with their weight. Dr. Lee, who joined the Costa Mesa-based weight management company last December, also sees the dramatic health improvements that result when patients succeed on the company’s Lean for Life program.

We talked with Dr. Lee about the Lindora’s unique medical approach to weight management, and new ways the company is interacting with physicians and health-conscious companies to provide its programs and services to patients and employees.

How would you describe Lindora’s Lean for Life program?

“Our program is designed to help a patient lose 10% of his or her body weight in ten weeks. Whether they want to lose 20 pounds or 200 pounds, we can help them succeed – rapidly, safely and without surgery. Patients visit our clinics two to five times a week, and experience a structured, supportive approach that guides them through a customized program, including lifestyle education so they keep the weight off. The program is designed to reverse insulin resistance and inflammation, improve blood pressure and cholesterol, and address other conditions – such as prediabetes – that result from being overweight.”

Lindora Clinic Partners to Improve Employee Health

Lindora’s Lean for Life program is rooted in science and medically managed and delivered by clinicians who specialize in weight loss. We also work with patients to address the behaviors and habits that contributed to their weight gain in the first place. When patients experience significant improvements in their health, it motivates them to maintain the focus required to make lasting changes. Such change is often difficult to make on one’s own.”

Lindora is developing partnerships with physicians and companies committed to patient and employee health and wellness. How do such partnerships work?

“We want to help people improve their health and their lives. Working with employers to offer customized weight management programs as part of a benefits program is one way to help accomplish that goal. Good health is good business. Healthier employees are happier, more productive, and take fewer sick days. Lindora is also partnering with primary care physicians to manage patient weight loss. I know how challenging and time-consuming it is for doctors to provide the guidance and support patients need to lose weight and learn to keep it off. That’s what we do at Lindora every day.”

Lindora Clinic has been on the cutting edge of weight loss science and treatment since opening its first clinic in Newport Beach in 1971.

41 CALIFORNIA LOCATIONS
Lindora Clinics are located throughout Southern and Northern California. Orange County locations include Fullerton, Huntington Beach, Irvine, La Habra, Laguna Hills, Laguna Niguel, Newport Beach, Orange, Rancho Santa Margarita, and San Juan Capistrano. Getting Your Teen Ready to Drive
It starts earlier than you think

Teaching your kids to become safe drivers is one of your important responsibilities as a parent. The Automobile Club of Southern California provides education, safety tools and other resources to make the driver’s licensing process a successful one for families.

“Many parents don’t realize they have been teaching their children to drive from as early as when the kids are able to observe in the car,” said Auto Club Driving School Manager Melissa Vega. “Parents can easily pass on bad habits such as speeding, tailgating and increasingly, distracted driving caused by cell phone use.”

Early preparation is key
But Vega said that with concerted effort before teens begin the driver training process, parents can reverse any less-than-stellar examples they may have set.

“We encourage parents and teens to sign a Parent-Teen Driver Agreement available at AAA.com/teen to outline the roles and responsibilities for each of them,” Vega said. “This will help keep parents aware of the good driving behaviors they need to practice in order to help their teen stay safe behind the wheel.”

Vega also encourages parents of 14- and 15-year-olds to attend a free Auto Club Dare to Prepare workshop with their teens, which helps them to understand the requirements of California’s driver licensing process. Those requirements have changed since most parents were learning to drive.

To check for class locations across Southern California, visit AAA.com/safety4teens.

Teen driver risks
The risks California teens face are real. In California, according to the Office for Traffic Safety, teen motor vehicle fatalities for 16- to 19-year-olds increased by nearly two percent from 2013 to 2014. And driver fatalities for 16- to 19-year-olds increased by 26.4 percent from 72 in 2013 to 91 in 2014. Males make up nearly two percent from 2013 to 2014. And driver fatalities for 16- to 19-year-olds increased by 26.4 percent from 72 in 2013 to 91 in 2014. Males make up 76 percent of teen driver fatalities.

“Quality instruction is necessary for safe driving and learning good driving habits,” said Vega. “It could save a life. So it’s important for parents to be fully invested in their teen’s driving instruction.”

Laying a good foundation of driver education and behind-the-wheel driving skills will help young drivers later on with resisting poor driver behavior like texting while driving, running red lights and speeding, which the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety recently found to be exhibited by millennial drivers (ages 19-24) – earning them the top spot for the worst behaved U.S. drivers.

How to choose a driving school
For those whose teens are ready to begin learning to drive, Vega recommends researching driving schools and identifying which type is best for the teen. A quality online driving school can be a good option for those with heavy activities schedules who are self-motivated, while a traditional classroom model might be best for students who benefit from in-person discussion and interaction. The Auto Club offers both types of training for the required 30 hours of driver education, along with behind-the-wheel training required for all new drivers, at eight convenient Orange County locations. More information on the Auto Club Driving School can be found at AAA.com/teen.

The Auto Club recommends the following tips to help choose the best driving school:

► Ask friends and family. Don’t just ask for the name of the online education program, but why it was selected and what features it had for successful understanding of the “rules of the road.”

► Ensure quality content is offered. Make sure that the curriculum is state-approved and that there are structured lesson plans that the teen can move through at a steady pace. Quality programs incorporate interactive activities, videos and quizzes, according to Vega. Ensure that teens absorb online lessons gradually. Teens cannot incorporate all the online driver education components in one day or even one week, said Vega.

► Find a school that emphasizes learning. The goal should be to understand the rules of the road, and to be prepared for behind-the-wheel training and supervised practice, not just getting sufficient information to pass the DMV exam to be issued a permit.

► Find a driver education program with an established history. Driver education schools can come and go, but typically quality programs last longer.

► Check references and complaints. Check with the Better Business Bureau for any complaints against the school. Ask for references of previous students and parents that can be called about their experience with the online driver education program.

Choosing the best car
In general, teens should drive vehicles that offer excellent occupant protection and less powerful engines to maximize safety. Many teens are also interested in improving the environment and reducing vehicle pollution. Luckily, many environmentally friendly vehicles provide safe teen-friendly features while helping them to reduce gas costs.

Parents and teens can research new cars and an extensive inventory of used cars available to Auto Club members at special pre-negotiated fleet prices by visiting AAA.com/carbuying.
In order to keep a business “healthy” from a financial perspective, management should periodically monitor several key indicators. Failing to do so could eventually result in poor financial performance and even the demise of your business.

Cash Flow Management

When your business is growing, you may experience a “cash flow crunch” as you struggle to make ends meet. The lagtime between the due date for current debt (e.g., accounts payable and payroll) and the time you collect from your customers is the problem, and a key part of the solution is cash flow management. Here are a few tips:

- Improve Receivables Collections – Accounts receivable activity should be reviewed regularly. As a general rule, monitor and take action on accounts receivable over 60 days old. Be careful that you don’t assume accounts receivables will continue at the same collection rate as in times past. Instead, consider seasonal or cyclical sales fluctuations and regularly monitor receipt of each receivable.

- Manage Payables – Some key tips to manage your accounts payable:
  - Take advantage of creditor payment terms. If a payment is due in 30 days and cash flow is tight, pay it on the last day, not the first.
  - If a creditor offers a discount, consider taking advantage of it if cash flow allows, but don’t put yourself in a bind, especially if the discount is negligible. Also, be very careful that these are trustworthy vendors, because you may find yourself essentially loaning them funds in certain situations.
  - Use electronic funds transfer to make payments on the last due date.
  - If you will be late with payments, it is usually a good practice to let suppliers know when they can expect payment and how much.

- Project Cash Flow – An accurate cash flow projection can alert you to trouble before it occurs. Consider factors such as accounts receivable payment histories, potential expenditures, and relations with your vendors and suppliers. Also consider expenses such as capital improvements, loan interest and principal payments, as well as variable expenses.

Monthly Financial Statement Reviews

Monthly financial reports provide a broader perspective of the financial health of your business. Obtain “benchmark” data to compare your business to similar businesses across the country, which will aid you in identifying where to improve your financial performance.

An income statement reports details of your revenue and expenses for given periods. It can be set up to provide comparison to previous years or months, so that you can easily spot any variances from the same period in a previous year. If there are any significant differences in an income or expense category, these should prompt a thorough review.

Your balance sheet provides a snapshot of your assets, liabilities and net worth. Evaluate your assets to see how much cash you have available, what you are owed, and the value of your fixed assets, such as property and equipment. Your balance sheet will show current liabilities (such as accounts payable) as well as long-term debt (such as a real estate loan on your building). Understand the financial health of your business by employing a variety of financial analysis tools to gauge your current strengths and weaknesses. Ratios that are commonly used include working capital, current ratio, and debt to worth. If you have a bank loan, analyze ratios such as “interest coverage” (which is a key ratio for a banker when analyzing your ability to pay back credit), return on average assets, and return on equity.
Will, Trust...What’s the Difference?

You’ve probably heard the terms “will” and “trust” and think they have something to do with giving away your assets to other people. But what’s the difference?

Clearly there’s a lot of confusion and procrastination surrounding the use of these tools in estate planning. According to a recent survey, over half (56 percent) of U.S. parents don’t have a will or living-trust estate planning document. Now is the time to get this critical conversation started with your financial advisor. Here’s a brief overview of differences between these two tools.

Will

A will is a legal document that, with court approval, empowers someone you name to wrap up your affairs after you pass away and names who will inherit your assets after your death.

A probate court typically administers this process, but most states have a non-court process in place for small estates (known as “informal probate”). A will first gives instructions to an executor to pay the expenses of your last illness, funeral expenses, unpaid taxes and other debts, and then tells the executor about who will inherit your assets and what assets they will inherit.

Most wills for larger estates go through the court-administered process called “probate” (also known as “formal probate”). During this process, the court determines if your will is valid, hears any objections to it and appoints your executor (usually the person you name), and then monitors the executor until all your debts are paid and your assets delivered to your heirs.

Wills do have limitations.

► You have to review them regularly to make sure they reflect your current wishes.
► Not all your assets are covered if they pass outside of probate. Accounts that have beneficiary designations (such as retirement accounts and insurance policies) are not governed by the terms of your will. They go outright to whoever is named as the beneficiary. It is important to make sure your beneficiary designations on these types of accounts are up to date.
► The probate process can take a long time, often over a year from start to finish.
► While some probate fees are fixed, probate usually requires that your estate have extraordinary services that cost extra, and the costs are deducted from the estate principal.
► They don’t help you if you are disabled or in need of care.

Caution: Without a will, you die “intestate,” and the court decides what happens to your assets based on the way the law instructs. This is called “intestate succession” and might mean your assets go to people, or in ways, that you would not want.

Trusts

So how is a trust different? A trust is a contract between you and a “trustee,” usually a person or company you know and trust. The trustee holds title to the property you give the trustee in trust and administers it in accordance with the terms of the contract for the benefit of the beneficiaries of the trust. The property can be almost anything you own – money, your home and other real estate, stocks, bonds, business ownership, collections and other personal possessions.

When you create a trust, you are the “settlor.” The property in the trust is managed by the trustee you name in the agreement. Though your assets are placed in trust, they don’t change location; they just change owner – the John Smith trust, not John Smith.

Most people set up a form of trust called a “revocable living trust.” In a revocable living trust, you typically name yourself as trustee, so you can control your trust’s assets until you are no longer capable of managing your affairs due to disability or death, at which time the person or company you named to be your “successor trustee” takes over. If you don’t make the trust non-amendable, you can reserve the right to change the terms and beneficiaries as long as you are competent.

Why do people choose a trust?

The most common reason is to keep their property from being administered by the probate court after they die. However, a more important reason is that if you, as a beneficiary, become disabled, your trustee can take over the management of your affairs at once without needing to go to court to ask for permission or without having to rely on other documents you have in place, such as a power of attorney. There can also be tax benefits available through a properly structured trust following your death.

Most people have both a will and a trust because the will covers property not placed in the trust and can leave that property to the trust. You still need to nominate a guardian for minor children, and there are other important documents you should consider, such as a power of attorney for health care and funeral instructions. It is all part of a carefully thought-out estate plan, and it is never too early to plan, only too late.

Whether a trust-centered estate plan or a simple will is the right arrangement for you is something that you should decide with the assistance of a qualified estate planning attorney.

Business Leaders and Girl Scouts Invest in Girls

Imagine a future where every girl grows up with the confidence and skills to be a change maker.

Orange County’s business community understands the importance of investing in the next generation of female leaders—and Girl Scouts is leading the charge. Girl Scouts is the expert in providing girls of every age with life-changing skills and experiences to use the G.I.R.L. (Go-getter, Innovator, Risk-taker, Leader)™ within to take action and enhance countless lives and communities.

Girl Scouts Works!

- 52% of all businesswomen in the United States were Girl Scouts
- 53% of female business owners were Girl Scouts
- 77% of girls say that, because of Girl Scouts, they are considering a career in technology

Securing a Strong Future for OC Girls

Opening in 2017 in Newport Beach’s Marina Park is the Argyros Girl Scout Leadership Center, named after philanthropist and community leader, Julia Argyros. The Leadership Center will serve as Orange County’s hub for Girl Scout STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math) programs and welcome nearly 21,000 OC Girl Scouts from all cultures and backgrounds. Girls will explore diverse careers and learn how they can take action to make the world a better place—all while creating lifelong memories and enjoying the waterfront surroundings and activities.

At the heart of the Leadership Center is INSPIRE, Girl Scouts of Orange County’s signature multimedia program, through which girls virtually meet extraordinary women spanning diverse careers and learn the vital role STEM plays in what they do. Girls will also hear from distinguished Girl Scouts, trailblazers across the nation, who have taken action using STEM skills to change the world—and learn to do it themselves.

For information about sponsor/donor opportunities, contact Michelle Dramé, at mdrame@girlscoutsOC.org.

Celebrating Female Leaders

Girl Scouts of Orange County’s eighth annual Celebrate Leadership event will recognize outstanding local leaders, all Girl Scout alumnae, who are making a difference in our community and raise funds for transformational Girl Scout programs. Celebrate Leadership will take place on Friday, November 10 at The Island Hotel in Newport Beach. Honorees will be announced soon! Find out more at GirlScoutsOC.org/CelebrateLeadership.

UCI’s LIFEvest Financial Literacy Program Empowers Teens From Underserved Communities With a Pathway Out of Poverty

What started as a one-week pilot program on financial literacy has blossomed into a highly sought-after summer residential for underserved ninth and tenth grade boys and girls from Southern California. This year will be no exception, as the Center for Investment and Wealth Management (CIWM) at UC Irvine’s Paul Merage School of Business gets underway with plans for the seventh annual LIFEvest Financial Literacy Summer Residential Program scheduled to take place July 16-22 for 30 young men and July 30-August 5 for 30 young women.

“The primary purpose of our LIFEvest Financial Literacy program is to provide a foundation of financial knowledge, while creating an enjoyable environment and summer experience for our students,” explained Andrew J. Policano, faculty director for the CIWM at the Merage School. “Each year has been a tremendous success, exceeding our expectations and those of the truly fantastic kids who attend.”

Established by Mark Moehlman, managing director for Beacon Pointe Wealth Advisors and founding chair of the CIWM at the Merage School, the program was designed to instill a strong desire for understanding financial matters, encourage admission into a four-year college or university, and inspire confidence and success in all areas of life. “It is alarming to me that today’s students receive little to no formal training in money management. In fact, those we’re targeting have never had the opportunity to attend a four-year college or university. Our goal is to provide them with the opportunity to learn the tools they need to succeed in all areas of their lives,” said Moehlman. “I have a special place in my heart for the plight of our youth who do not know how to handle money and I’m thrilled this program has become so successful.”

Real-World Exposure

This year, students will tour Taco Bell headquarters and Pacific Alternative Asset Management Company (PAAMCO). In addition, the program features supplemental educational sessions on dressing and presenting oneself for success, a social etiquette dinner and myriad inspiring speakers, including a local Olympian and distinguished UC Irvine alumni.

During the six-day immersive program, students live in dorms on the beautiful UC Irvine campus. For most of these students, this will be the first time they have been away from their families, let alone spending a week in a college campus. Irvine campus. For most of these students, this will be the first time they have been away from their families. They learn about basic budgeting, banking, credit and financial markets; all essential life skills that are not readily available to most youth. Classroom speakers and workshops are augmented by fieldtrips, corporate visits and fun events highlighting the college experience including cheering on UC Irvine sports teams and athletes, building confidence on the agility ropes course and making lifelong friends.

Program Support Crucial to Helping Students Excel

The cost for this once in a lifetime program is $2,100 per student for the weeklong experience. Sponsorships and private donations support the program so it is provided completely free-of-charge for all accepted students. “Many of our sponsors have returned to support this special program year after year. They see the impact it has on the participants and want to continue to “pay it forward.” We are always looking for new businesses and individuals to get involved, support the program and its students, and offer their facilities for some of our workshops and educational experiences,” said Policano. “This will ensure the viability of the program and allows us to expand it so more deserving youth may participate.”

A recent path-breaking gift in the form of an endowment from CIWM board member Pamela M. Adams will allow students from economically disadvantaged communities to attend the LIFEvest Financial Literacy Program for years to come. Says Adams, “My goal is to teach financial literacy to the point where students will, ultimately, earn enough money and learn how to invest it so that they have more to give.”

Other recent generous donations from companies and individuals include Beacon Pointe Wealth Advisors, The Boeing Company, Charles Schwab Foundation, Duckworth Wealth Advisors, JP Morgan Foundation, US Bank Foundation, Pacific Life Foundation, Feyzi Fatehi, Dr. Christine Bren, Robert and Barbara Edmonds, O’Grady Foundation, Schweppe Family, Rick and Anne Keller, Ranney and Pricilla Draper, Affinity Investment Advisors, First Foundation Advisors, Dubchansky Foundation, Jordan and Dan Floriani and Taco Bell. A generous donation by PAAMCO in 2016 allowed the Center to expand LIFEvest from supporting 30 students to 60 students per year.

Each year, the program receives over 200 applications from our social impact organization partners in the community. The number of organizations has tripled since the program’s inception and now includes: Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Boys and Girls Club of Central Orange Coast, El Viento, El Sol Academy, Kidworks, Operation Jump Start, Orange County Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, Project Hope Alliance, The Wooden Floor, Samueli Academy, Garden Grove Unified School District and the Santa Ana Unified School District.

To get involved or help sponsor a student, contact Lee Anne Maki at lmaki@uci.edu or call 949.824.8470. To learn more about the program, visit merage.uci.edu/events/merage/literacy.

Bhindí Jewelers began its journey in 1929 in the Fiji Islands. Eighty-seven years, three generations and four store locations later, Bhindi Jewelers has become a household name and trusted source in the jewelry and timepiece industry.

With the firm belief that both a truly personal experience and high-end ambiance need not be mutually exclusive, Bhindi created a showroom that exemplified the marriage of these two principles. In March 2016, the flagship store in Artesia underwent a major renovation. The once 7,000-square-foot showroom now spans more than 17,000 square feet and boasts a market-leading collection of gold and diamond jewelry and luxury timepieces over two floors. Custom-built shop-in-shops within the showroom dedicated to six watch brands allow clients to immerse themselves in the individual brand experience. From its early years trading primarily in gold jewelry, to custom-designed diamond pieces, and now to high-end timepieces, the Bhindi brand has undergone an evolution of luxury making it a one-stop shop for all clients looking for a truly upscale and intimate retail experience.

Kellie Aamodt, VP of Sales, UPS West Region

UPS, Anaheim

Kellie Aamodt started with UPS as an international account executive in 1991 in the Minnesota District. After many assignments and rose through the supervisor, middle manager ranks and was promoted as her first director assignment in Houston, Texas. After five years, she was transferred to director of sales in Ontario, CA. She was then transferred to the corporate office in Atlanta, GA to handle the growth activities throughout the U.S. In three years, she returned to California as the managing director of sales for UPS in the newly created Southern California district. In 2011, she was promoted to vice president of retail sales for UPS. In 2012, she was then transferred to Chicago as the vice president of that central region. In 2013, she was transferred back to her current position as vice president of the West Region where she is responsible for all sales activities within the western 22 states. United Parcel Service Inc. is the world's largest package delivery company and a provider of supply chain management solutions.

Olivia Duane Adams, Chief Customer Officer/Founding Partner

Alteryx, Irvine

At Alteryx’s inception in 1997, Olivia Duane Adams, along with her co-founders, knew they could make a difference in the self-service analytics sector. Today, the company enables access to business answers through data with software that provides business analysts with easier, faster and more affordable agile technology. In her role, Adams is responsible for overseeing and maximizing the complete Alteryx customer experience, from engagement to on-boarding, communications, performance and retention. She has interacted with nearly every Alteryx customer, giving her a holistic perspective of the overall experience from implementation to adoption success. With a customer satisfaction score of 98%, the importance of the customer experience is truly a cross-functional responsibility at Alteryx owned by all teams. The co-founders have always focused on the customer as the most important asset, next to their employees, and they pass that message on every day.

Anne Albertine, Director of Research & Development

Del Taco Restaurants Inc., Lake Forest

From tennis shoes to tacos, Anne Albertine has made an indelible mark over the course of her career in the field of research and development (R&D). Today, Albertine leads the evolution behind the menu of Del Taco, one of Orange County’s most iconic brands. With more than 25 years of experience in product and culinary development, Albertine’s portfolio ranges from product development of footwear for Nike to menu ideation for familiar restaurant brands such as Taco Bell, Pick Up Stix and IHOP. Attracted to Del Taco for its fresh prep approach to operations not typical of quick service restaurants, Albertine joined the team in 2014 with the responsibility of reinvigorating the menu and making the brand’s “UnFreshing Believable” promise come to life through food. Since then, she has improved the restaurant’s core ingredients and supplier relations, introduced new processes that create symbiosis between operations, marketing, and R&D initiatives, and innovated several of Del Taco’s new, top-performing menu items, including its bestselling menu item of all time, The Del Taco, launched in 2016.

Tina Aldatz, CEO/Co-Founder

Savvy Travelers, Laguna Hills

Tina Aldatz grew up in a socioeconomically disadvantaged household filled with domestic violence, alcohol/drug and child abuse. As a pediatric burn survivor, Aldatz turned tragedy into a success story. In 2001, Aldatz founded Foot Petsals, an insole company, with Margarita Flores that they later sold for $14 million in 2011. Foot Petsals was then recognized by Inc. 500 as one of the 500 Fastest-Growing Companies in America. She has been featured on media outlets such as Entrepreneur, Huffington Post, LA Times, CNN and Forbes. In 2014, she started Savvy Travelers, designer beauty wipes that are curated for the on-the-go traveler. Savvy Travelers offer products in convenient kits and single-use packets that are disposable, eco-friendly and made in California. In 2015, Comerica Bank’s Women’s Business Awards gave Aldatz the Women of Entrepreneurship Award. Aldatz also won the National Latina Business Women Association’s Business Woman of the Year.

Gina Alshuler, President/CEO

Rauxa, Costa Mesa

Gina Alshuler has been an integral part of Rauxa for more than 16 years. Specifically, she has played a key role in transforming the agency from a pure direct response shop to an integrated marketing agency offering digital, media, research and technology solutions to a variety of Fortune 100 clients such as Gap Inc. Alshuler has held various roles, including president, senior vice president of account services, account director and account manager, having worked her way up the ranks since first joining the company in 2001. In 2015, she was promoted to chief executive officer. Year over year, under Alshuler’s leadership, the agency has experienced consistent and dramatic revenue growth. Central to this is Alshuler’s direct role in upholding and growing relationships with the agency’s most critical clients. She is responsible for business growth that required the agency to expand its footprint across the U.S. — opening offices in Atlanta and New York.

Paula Ansara-Wilheim, Co-Founder

Surterre Properties/Bash Magazine, Newport Beach

Many describe Paula Ansara-Wilheim as a “serial entrepreneur,” able to identify emerging trends and create solutions for industry challenges. Ansara-Wilhelm created a “virtual ad agency” to service businesses that couldn’t afford the traditional model — which allowed her the freedom and flexibility to raise her son. She co-founded Surterre Properties in 2006, the leading luxury real estate firm headquartered in Newport Beach with offices in Laguna Beach, Corona del Mar, Monarch Beach, San Clemente and Irvine. Ansara-Wilhelm has developed and managed the company’s branding efforts and works closely with Surterre’s top agents throughout the competitive Orange County luxury marketplace. Under her leadership, Surterre Properties has grown to more than 400 agents and $10 billion in sales in one of the most challenging real estate markets in history. In 2010, she also launched and had the creative vision for Bash Magazine, a luxury lifestyle publication.

Dawn Antis, CEO/Founder

Mom & Tot OC, Irvine

Mom & Tot is the first and only mommy-and-me program in Orange County that caters to toddlers. Dawn Antis provides an informal and relaxing space for moms and their little ones by hosting the classes in her baby-proofed home. More than 100 moms, 70 toddlers and 24 sets of twins or triplets have completed her program, which is recognized by the OC Register as a local resource that helps connect parents living in Orange County. To grow her business, Antis began blogging for Mom & Tot OC, which landed her a position at OC Family magazine as a contributing writer. She’s had several articles published in OC Family, OC Register, Coast magazine and The Toronto Star. Antis was appointed by Irvine City Councilwoman Melissa Fox to serve on the Irvine Child Care Committee. She’s also on the board of directors for Valiant Women of Mission Hospital and the Saddleback Mothers of Multiples Club.

Patty Arvielo, President/Co-Founder

New American Funding, Tustin

Patty Arvielo co-founded New American Funding in 2003. In the past 14 years as president, Arvielo has worked diligently to transform the mortgage banker into a national mortgage lender and servicer that funds more than $1 billion in home loans each month. Under her guidance, the company has brought the entire loan process in house — origination, processing, underwriting, funding and servicing. She continues to manage operations and sales for New American Funding’s headquarters, 130+ branches and 2,400+ employees. Honored as a 2016 EY Entrepreneur of The Year Orange County and by the LA Times Latinos de Hoy Awards, Arvielo is a first generation Latina with 30+ years of experience in the housing industry and a lifetime of dedication to serving the Hispanic community.

Nazli Azimi, Founder/President/CEO

Bioniz Therapeutics Inc., Irvine

Dr. Nazli Azimi is founder and CEO of Bioniz Therapeutics Inc., a biopharmaceutical company that is dedicated to the discovery and development of novel therapeutics to treat autoimmune diseases and some forms of cancer. Azimi is also the co-inventor of the company’s platform technology. This technology enables development of plupotent drugs that are safer, more potent and less expensive than currently marketed medicines. Bioniz has obtained FDA approval to conduct clinical trials for its first investigational drug for the treatment of a type of aggressive blood cancer. Bioniz’s second drug candidate is for the treatment of celiac disease that will enter clinical trials next year.

Mary Ann Azzolina, Real Estate Agent

Surterre Properties, Dana Point

Mary Ann Azzolina has become one of the most respected agents in the South Orange County real estate industry due to her commitment to going above and beyond for her clientele. Azzolina was looking for a career that would support raising her three children as a single mother. Azzolina became a licensed real estate agent in 2002 working for Prudential California Realty. She worked full-time as a real estate agent, while also working as an administrative manager for a small company to ensure she had a consistent income and benefits for her family as she grew her business. Azzolina later joined Surterre Properties®. To date, 2016 was her best year in the real estate market. Her recent accomplishments include winning the Central Region of California’s Top 100 Real Estate Agent in 2016. Surterre Properties is a leading luxury real estate firm headquartered in Newport Beach.

Katie Bayliss, Founding Partner
Dodge Probate - Trust Law Attorney, Irvine
Dodge Probate - Trust Law Attorney is a law practice focused on estate planning, business law and real estate law. It was founded by attorney Katie Bayliss after a near-death experience while giving birth to her second child that could have caused her to lose everything that she and her husband had worked so hard for – their home, businesses and every dollar of savings. She came to realize how fragile life can be and how circumstances can change instantaneously. Most importantly, Bayliss learned how imperative it is to have a documented plan that protects yourself, your family and your assets. At Dodge Probate, and at the heart of Bayliss’s mission as a parent, is a focus to help families navigate their future with unexpected outcomes.

The company’s team provides premium legal services with customized and personalized drafting for the needs of each family. Bayliss is a member of WealthCounsel, an elite national organization for estate planners, as well as a member of the Trust and Estates Section of the Orange County Bar Association.

Margaret Bayston, CEO/Executive Director
Laura’s House, Ladera Ranch
Since joining Laura’s House as CEO/executive director in 2001, Margaret Bayston has helped more than 50,000 women and children escape domestic violence. Under Bayston’s direction, the organization has expanded its focus, creating greater awareness of teen dating violence through its innovative program, H.E.A.R.T (Healthy Emotions & Attitudes in Relationships Today). By providing expert guidance, unique start-to-finish legal services, hospitable emergency shelters and educational programs, Bayston has been instrumental in the success of the nonprofit. Bayston’s position requires relationship building to achieve high-level fundraising, and she has excelled in that arena as the face and heart of Laura’s House. She has spearheaded valuable partnerships with major enterprises, including Urban Decay and See Jane Go. She oversees the popular Laura’s House Annual Gala and has been instrumental in bringing social enterprise to the organization, with the opening of two resale stores that have raised significant funds to help the nonprofit pursue its mission to end domestic violence.

Jacqueline Beaumont, Shareholder
Call & Jensen, Newport Beach
Jacqueline Beaumont is an experienced employment litigator who has been recognized for her work representing corporate clients in all aspects of employment law and legal advising. She is a shareholder at Call & Jensen, where she has built a practice defending employers in high stakes employment lawsuits, handling a range of matters, including state and federal anti-discrimination, wage and hour, and employee class action lawsuits. She has successfully represented clients in hundreds of legal matters, obtaining trial verdicts, settlements and victories in and outside the courtroom. Beaumont is a leader outside the office as well, co-chairing the Orange County Bar Association’s Mommy Esquire Committee; and serving the community through involvement with Girls Inc., WWWW, Public Law Center and student moot court competitions. She was selected as a Super Lawyers’ Southern California Rising Star from 2012 through 2017 for excellence in the practice of law, and has been repeatedly awarded for her pro bono accomplishments.

Janie Best became the chief executive officer of WHW in 2011. In that time, the organization has grown from serving just over 1,500 clients annually to nearly 10,000 annually. The annual operating budget has doubled during that time, while eliminating dependence on government funding and increasing privately raised funds. Best has been instrumental in authoring and implementing a comprehensive strategic plan, which has resulted in dramatic growth, increased visibility and overall impact. WHW is a nonprofit that provides the unemployed and underemployed the skills and resources they need to get and keep a good job.

Clare Bielecki, Business Development Manager
Kitchell, Tustin
In her position at Kitchell, a construction management firm with a local office based in Tustin, Clare Bielecki identifies and develops new project opportunities for the Southern California region. Her territory includes all of the SoCal counties, where she searches out and establishes contact with targeted leads for new business, develops client and project-related information to allow strategy formulation for a successful marketing and pre-positioning approach. In addition, she coordinates follow-up with clients and business contacts in pursuing specific project opportunities. Kitchell’s expertise in the CM delivery method extends to early days. When founder Sam Kitchell realized the niche of providing overall construction management services. Many owners didn’t want the headache of overseeing major construction initiatives, and Kitchell was ideally suited to provide expertise for the entire project lifecycle – from siting, planning, and overseeing construction to final walk-through and grand opening.

Ashleigh Blatt, Online Business Manager/Motivational Strategist/Podcast Ashleigh Blatt, Newport Beach Revenue and priority-driven, Ashleigh Blatt has been called “the heartbeat of the organization.” She harnesses her expertise in an organization and effectively manages online marketing channels to generate multiple income streams for celebrities, experts and small businesses. Part motivator and part organizational engineer, as an online business manager (OBM), Blatt serves as a “right hand man” with a pragmatic approach that empowers teams through her ability to quickly identify viable solutions that net results. Equally important, she is also an authority on increasing revenue by creating strategic partnerships, advancing relationships and driving targeted online marketing campaigns, driving revenue for celebrities, experts and traditional business owners. Blatt is also a proponent for diversity and inclusion. Out of the spotlight, Blatt mentors associates and encourages open, firm-wide communication. She is not only recognized as a leader within the firm, but within the Orange County legal community.

Cynthia Bobruk, President/Executive Director The Orange Catholic Foundation, Garden Grove Cynthia Bobruk transitioned The Orange Catholic Foundation from its operation under the USCBB Group Ruling to a 501(c)(3), Bobruk has led the organization’s year-over-year increases of the fundraising and stewardship program, “Proud to be Catholic” Pastoral Services Appeal (PSA) for the Diocese of Orange. She initiated and ran the highly successful first-ever capital campaign, For Christ Forever, which has raised a record $120 million from more than 24,000 participating individuals and families. Five years ago, Bobruk crafted a series of free information sessions led by Catholic estate planning attorneys and financial advisors now known as the Orange Catholic Foundation’s Will and Trusts Weeks. These sessions, held each year in the spring have been attended by thousands of individuals and families. Under her guidance, the Orange Catholic Foundation now manages more than 45 parish, school and ministry endowments as permanent restricted assets of the foundation, and offers planned giving programs and resources for the parishes, schools and the Diocese.

Monica Bonakdar, MD, Medical Director/Physician Bonakdar Institute, Corona del Mar As a physician, Monica Bonakdar’s goal is to be an early adopter and an expert of new and safe technologies in the aesthetic arena, and to provide clients ongoing correction, maintenance and preventative aesthetic treatments. Through dedicating her entire practice to cosmetic dermatology and letting go of general medicine and general dermatology, the depth of Bonakdar’s experience surpasses many of her colleagues. Bonakdar does approximately 40,000 units of Botox and 200 syringes of fillers every year. She has also developed an exclusive non-invasive face lifting and neck lifting filler technique, called AmpiliPhi, with results unlike any other treatment. Bonakdar’s success is due to her unrelenting determination and drive to achieve her goals; she has never let society’s expectations of a woman from a third world country dictate what she settles for.

Shannon Eusey, President/Founder
Beacon Pointe Wealth Advisors, Newport Beach
Starting at the ground floor in the financial services industry, Shannon Eusey’s hard work, persistence and emphasis on putting her clients first catapulted her through the ranks in a heavily male-dominated industry. Eusey pictured a firm with a clear objective, prompting her to found Beacon Pointe Advisors. Fifteen years, 10 affiliate offices, 110+ employees, 70+ institutions, thousands of high-net-worth families and more than $9 billion in assets later, Beacon Pointe is consistently ranked as one of the largest independent advisory firms in the nation. Beacon Pointe has become a model firm in both its gender diversity and its mission of empowering female financial independence. Under Eusey’s guidance, Beacon Pointe is now more than 45% female, with women holding senior or executive positions in every department of the firm. Eusey is also currently one of the top-ranked female advisors in the country according to Barron’s “Top 100 Independent Wealth Advisors” List for 2016, and Beacon Pointe is ranked in the Top 20 overall in California according to Barron’s 2016 “Top Advisor Rankings: California.”
Amanda Ferrai, VP, Estate & Gift Planning
St. Joseph Health, Irvine

Amanda J. Ferrai, JD, is vice president, estate and gift planning for Irvine-based St. Joseph Health. In the six years she has held the position, the hospitals raised $250 million and more than $75 million in estate and charitable planned gifts. These contributions, which have experienced 7% to 10% increases year-over-year, are essential for funding life-saving programs, services and technology that have touched thousands of lives throughout the communities served by the health system. Ferrai is known for a special blend of technical expertise and her remarkable skill for bringing people together. She co-authored donor philanthropists on a range of charitable giving, including charitable gift annuities, charitable remainder trusts, charitable lead trusts, life estates, bargain sales, complex estate gifts, and gifts of real estate and privately held stock. But most importantly, she easily earns the trust of others and develops win-win situations for everyone.

Amanda Ferris, Marketing Communications
Hart, Anaheim

Since joining Hart, a health care technology company, in June 2016, Amanda Ferris has leveraged her background in talent recruitment to quickly establish powerful relationships with local media and influencers. Ferris has spearheaded Hart’s initiative to become more involved in the local technology, design and health community. Ferris started her career at age 15 as a sales assistant with Marriott, supporting one of the most successful sales teams in the Southern California market. It wasn’t long before her sales skills carried her beyond the world of hospitality and into recruitment. While sourcing talent for a staffing company in Los Angeles, Ferris discovered her passion — connecting with people, and connecting people with opportunities. Following a few years in the staffing industry, Ferris was invited by Costa Mesa startup Payoff to lead talent acquisition. In fewer than 12 months, Ferris helped grow Payoff from 38 to 130 employees and had a hand in Payoff earning the distinction of being one of the Best Places to Work in Orange County two years in a row.

In this role, Ford-Duffus will drive revenue growth, oversee the Orange County board of directors, as well as staff. Ford-Duffus worked for the American Heart Association in the late 1990’s and is returning after exploring other opportunities over the past two decades. In addition to her previous work with AHA, Ford-Duffus has a personal connection to the mission of the American Heart Association; her daughter, Kara, was born with a congenital heart defect called Atrial Septal Defect. Kara underwent a catheter lab procedure in lieu of open heart surgery to repair her heart in January 2006, with a new device that had only been FDA approved for a year. The procedure was successful and Kara is now a healthy teenager. The American Heart Association is the nation’s oldest and largest voluntary organization dedicated to fighting heart disease and stroke.

Shirin Forootan, Attorney at Law
Call & Jensen, Newport Beach

Shirin Forootan’s legal practice focuses exclusively on employment litigation defense and counseling. Her dedicated commitment to her clients has yielded excellent results both inside and outside of court. She has had class actions dismissed, individual actions dismissed and class certification denied. Outside of court, she has negotiated favorable settlements for employers and has convinced the Labor Commissioner to dismiss wage claims. Forootan routinely speaks and is a published author on a variety of labor and employment topics. Because she has demonstrated an excellence in the practice of law, Forootan has been selected to Super Lawyers’ Southern California “Rising Stars” List for the past three years, which is a distinction reserved for just 2.5% of attorneys in California. She currently serves as on the board of directors of the Orange County Bar Association and on the Community Impact Cabinet of Orange County United Way. Call & Jensen has become the law firm of choice for many companies in high stakes litigation.

Jennifer Friend, Ceo
Project Hope Alliance, Costa Mesa

Project Hope Alliance (PHA), a Costa Mesa-based nonprofit organization, is committed to ending the cycle of homelessness, one child at a time. Jennifer Friend first joined PHA as the president and secretary of its board of directors while she continued her successful career as a partner at a large law firm. Friend’s past as a former Orange County “motel kid” and extraordinary passion for helping families experiencing these same hardships motivated her to turn her avocation into her vocation. Under Friend’s leadership since 2012, PHA has moved more than 800 children and parents out of homelessness. In 2016 alone, PHA ended homelessness for 18 families – which included 47 children and 34 adults. 88% of families achieved financial stability within 12 months of ending the program — a number that continues to increase every year. PHA also launched two new education programs in 2016, serving youth from kindergarten through age 24.

Donna Gallup, President/CEO
American Family Housing, Midway City
Since becoming president and CEO of American Family Housing (AFH) in 2014, Donna Gallup has taken a relatively obscure nonprofit and brought it into the spotlight by, most recently, identifying the need for affordable housing for homeless veterans. The newly developed Potter’s Lane community – the nation’s first permanent housing for the homeless built using shipping containers – which was launched in February to overwhelming accolades, not only fills a critical need, but also significantly increases awareness of the troubling predicament of housing homeless veterans in Southern California. With a goal to elevate AFH’s essential mission on a national scale, Gallup has dramatically increased AFH’s media attention with the launch of Potter’s Lane. More than 300 people attended its ribbon-cutting and stories about the project were featured in the Los Angeles Times, Orange County Register and KTLA. Gallup has also played an essential role in securing major donations and, in 2016, the OC Register named her one of the Most Influential People in our county.

Erin Goodgold, Co-Owner/Founder
Montage Legal Group, Irvine
Montage Legal Group was co-founded by Laurie Rowen and Erin Goodgold in early 2009. Rowen and Goodgold met at Snell & Wilmer LLP, where they worked together as associates in the Orange County office. After their daughters were three weeks apart, the two litigators decided to go out on their own as freelance/contract attorneys. Rowen and Goodgold worked for several Southern California law firms on a contract basis for a year, and in early 2010, the litigators began to add similarly situated attorneys to their group. Montage Legal Group has grown to include more than 150 freelance attorneys, all of whom have left law firms in search of balance between career and family. Montage Legal Group has a unique business model, and can best be described as a network of experienced contract/contractual attorneys who have left law firms to achieve work-life balance. Montage Legal Group attorneys are at the top of the contract attorney market, with impressive credentials from prestigious law schools and experience at top national firms.

Loreen Gilbert, President
WealthWise Financial Services, Irvine
Loreen Gilbert is celebrating her 20th year in business and is in the top 2% in gross income over out of 15,000 advisors clearing through LPL Financial. In 2017, because of the firm’s fast growth, Gilbert was ranked as a robo-infrastructure producer. Her private practice has won prizes with major companies such as Westinghouse, and contracts with companies such as Eli Lilly. Goldstein joined New Day Psychotherapy Group in 2016 – bringing more than 30 years of medical experience in the fields of general and orthopedic surgery, neurological surgery and psychiatry. Goldstein’s practice is known for her passion for solving the hard problems for those who have not been able to find answers, and in some cases, a correct diagnosis. Her methods include standard, as well as complementary and alternative treatments. She studied in Boston, France, Canada, and is a veteran of the U.S. Army Medical Corps. She has also written extensively for newspapers and the internet, published two books and is a prolific blogger on health issues.

Liz Goodgold, Founder
RedFire Branding, Newport Beach
Since she created RedFire Branding, a marketing and management consulting agency, almost three years ago, Liz Goodgold has focused on getting executives and entrepreneurs to brand better and “speak gooder” through keynote speaking, training, coaching and consulting. Goodgold fires up employees at Warner Bros., Abbott Labs, Pfizer, Qualcomm and Meals on Wheels to brand out and stand out. Further, she’s authored three books: How to Speak Gooder, RedFire Branding and Du! Marketing. Goodgold is also frequently on TV as she deciphers the news, appears on Hollywood Scandals, and provides color commentary on The Kennedy Files. Goodgold has delivered more than 367 presentations from Boston to Beijing.

Cindy Goss, President
Propel Business Solutions Inc., Mission Viejo
Cindy Goss is president of Propel Business Solutions Inc., a full-service advertising and marketing agency, almost three years ago. After a successful, executive-level career in the technology, staffing and nonprofit sectors, Goss’s vision was to form a leading-edge for-profit firm, with the “heart” of a nonprofit organization. In just over nine years, the firm now operates throughout California and specializes in branding and marketing for both for-profit and nonprofit organizations. Outside of a vibrant client base and year-over-year profitability and growth, Goss considers her greatest achievement to be her ability to influence others in the Orange County business community to share their profits, time and talents to help those in need. Propel Business Solutions is regarded as a leading-edge branding and marketing firm that creates greater visibility and market share for their clients.

Anne Grey, Executive Director
Alzheimer’s Association Orange County Chapter, Orange
After raising more than $53 million and creating innovative programs across several philanthropic organizations, Anne Grey took the helm of the Alzheimer’s Association Orange County Chapter in July 2017. She is spearheading the development of a new Orange County Chapter within the Alzheimer’s Association, ensuring that those facing Alzheimer’s and their caregivers in Orange County have access to care and support 24/7. She has already secured $1 million in research funding that has stayed locally in Orange County – that’s in addition to the care and support services she’s grown in this area. This past January, Grey launched a public policy forum, bringing local and national researchers and policy advisors together to discuss Alzheimer’s disease. In less than nine months, she has built and mentors an exceptional team, a board of directors and continues to develop new avenues of growth and teams to serve the community.

Jill Griffin, President
Advantage Marketing Partners, Irvine
Jill Griffin joined Advantage Solutions in 2008 to lead a then $30-million division within the emerging marketing services group. Since that time, she has been involved with the enterprise to build and lead Advantage Marketing Partners, a nearly $600-million agency with a suite of services in brand development, consumer and shopper marketing, digital marketing and media, experiential marketing, multicultural marketing and culinary marketing. With national reach, the agency employs 2,000+ full-time and 22,000 part-time associates across North America and is honored to be the agency of record for many of today’s most-recognized brands across retail, packaged goods, technology, apparel, automotive, travel, entertainment, education and health care. Griffin has led the development of new products which have been transformational to shopper engagement in the retail sector. In addition, she has led the M&A efforts to diversify the agency’s capabilities, as well as the industries it serves.

Kaaren Hall, CEO/President
uDirect IRA Services, Irvine
After 20+ years of experience at Bank of America, Indymac Bank and her own mortgage brokerage experience, Kaaren Hall saw the recession take hold and the mortgage market collapse. Rather than folding up her tent, Hall took her real estate and finance knowledge in a promising new direction – self-directed IRAs. Hall has helped thousands of Americans invest their IRA into real estate, notes and other assets outside of the stock market to improve their financial future. Now, Hall is a passionate educator and facilitator for better retirement through highly diversified and individually controlled IRAs. She has taught tens of thousands of people through live events, podcasts and webinars. Presently, she is working on her first book to be released next year. She is recognized as an expert in her field and serves on the board of directors for the Retirement Industry Trust Association.

Rebecca Hall, CEO
Idea Hall, Costa Mesa
Rebecca Hall is a proven trailblazer. In 2003, she founded an integrated PR/marketing agency at a time when each discipline was highly siloed. This vision proved to be the catalyst for the cutting-edge force that Idea Hall is today. Hall demonstrated unwavering leadership as she shepherded her agency – built on commercial real estate and financial services clientele – through the 2008 Great Recession. She remains one of the first female heads of an agency, and one of the most successful female PR and marketing entrepreneurs in Orange County. She attributes her success to staying three steps ahead of the industry and boardroom demographics. Today, Idea Hall is one of the fastest-growing marketing agencies in Orange County, ranked No. 2 by the Orange County Business Journal’s “Public Relations Firms” List in 2015 and 2016. Idea Hall’s clients include Irvine Co., Visit Anaheim, Swinerton, Bixby Land, StorQuest, Buchanan Street Partners, R.D. Olson and more.

Kristin Halton, Founder/Broker
The Halton Group, Newport Beach
As a resident of Newport Beach and a seasonal real estate leader within the community, Kristin Halton lends more than 17 years of award-winning expertise and attention to detail to buyers and sellers alike throughout the prestigious coastal communities of Orange County. She is ranked among the top-producing agents nationwide and is in the top 1% of agents in Orange County. Her proactive back-to-basics approach, combined with her genuine passion for real estate, has garnered her an impressive portfolio of clients that appreciate her outside-of-the-box strategy. In the last 18 months alone, The Halton Group has sold more than $100 million in real estate sales.

Heidi Hendy, Managing Principal
H. Hendy Associates, Newport Beach
Heidi Hendy launched H. Hendy Associates in 1979 to drive innovation in the field of interior architecture and planning. Nearly four decades later, the company has established itself as a leading force in the industry as one of Interior Design Magazine’s Top 200 Architecture Firms for 26 consecutive years. Hendy and her team help clients seamlessly relocate or remodel, with services spanning strategic facilities programming, employee satisfaction analysis, change management and space planning. While each project astounds visually, efficiency and functionality are driving forces behind every design. The company’s roster of workplaces includes TRI Pointe Group, Monster Energy, Squar Milner, Mark IV, Yokohama Tires Corp., Kawasaki and OluKai. In addition to the many LEED certified professionals at the firm, the WELL accreditation sets H. Hendy Associates apart from its competitors. The firm’s ability to incorporate wellness concepts into every design not only delights clients and their employees, it reduces absenteeism and increases productivity.

Susan Hensey, Partner/CAFM & Occupancy Strategies Studio Principal
Little, Newport Beach
Over the past 32 years, Susan Hensey has influenced Little’s traditional architectural practice to adopt service models that reach beyond the profession’s conventional realms of design to include data-driven occupancy planning solutions. With Hensey’s insight, Little developed a technology service offering years before the advent of internet space management tools. This technology allowed clients to connect to their facility information through an online portfolio – aiding in productivity and informed decision-making. Hensey also authored a service model to articulate the services best fulfilled by architects, supporting corporate real estate executives and facility managers beyond the project process. Hensey started her career at Little in Charlotte, NC and transferred to Little’s Orange County office in 2011. With the goal to grow and diversify the Orange County office, Hensey incubated Little’s Workplace Interiors Studio in 18 months and notably won the IDA-OC Haute Couture Fashion Show charitable event two consecutive years.

Alix Hobbs, CEO/President
Crystal Cove Alliance, Newport Coast
When Alix Hobbs joined Crystal Cove Alliance (CCA) in 2016, she brought more than 20 years of environmental nonprofit experience spanning fundraising, advocacy, education and community relations. Previously president and CEO of the acclaimed Heal the Bay environmental organization in Santa Monica, Hobbs was the ideal person to steer the dynamic organization, founded by Laura Davick, at a pivotal time in CCA history. Working with Davick, the staff and board of directors, Hobbs is moving critical initiatives forward, most notably the restoration of the 17 cottages and expansion of the environmental education programs. Hobbs immediately fell in love with Crystal Cove the moment she stepped foot on the sandy shores and saw the potential of the outdoor classroom with a backdrop of the historic cottages.

Danielle Horton, Director of Marketing
Urban Produce, Irvine
Danielle Horton is a founding shareholder in Urban Produce, a 16-acre vertical organic farm. Serving as her company’s director of marketing and food safety, Horton helped launch the company with her family in 2013. She played a key role in leading Urban Produce to reach its major company milestones, including helping her farm obtain its USDA organic certification, facilitating placement in major retailers and supermarkets along the West Coast, securing major contracts with two publicly traded juice companies, and helped launch an e-commerce program. Horton has helped Urban Produce increase its production three-fold, allowing the company to triple in revenue.

Stacy Hubbard, Principal, Client Services Director
Marsh & McLennan Agency, Aliso Viejo
Stacy Hubbard is a principal at Marsh & McLennan Insurance Agency LLC. Hubbard is responsible for directing client services for the employee benefits division. She joined the firm in 2011, and has been one of the key drivers behind the Orange County location’s meteoric growth. When she arrived, the office had only four employee benefits service members and annual revenue of $3.5 million. Today, under Hubbard’s care, the firm has added an additional 36 employees to the division with revenue now at $17 million a year. Hubbard and her team serve more than 300 Orange County businesses, helping them thrive through strong benefit programs. With the unpredictable nature of medical insurance regulation, these businesses look to Hubbard with confidence, knowing she will be there with them to weather any changes ahead.

Jo-E Immel, VP, Business Development
Snyder Langston, Irvine
Jo-E Immel is vice president, business development for Snyder Langston, a trusted real estate and construction advisor to Fortune 500, mid-size and startup companies. Immel was selected by Snyder Langston’s leadership to participate in its succession planning to become one of the organization’s next owners. This makes her the first woman outside of field operations to hold that role. Immel was selected based on her years of service, industry expertise and forward-looking skill sets that will best serve the firm, its clients and clients now and well into the future. Over the course of her 10 years at Snyder Langston, Immel’s greatest impact has been in elevating the firm’s approach to servicing its clients, focused on being a true partner in achieving client goals. This has moved well beyond a traditional business relationship to identify additional areas where Snyder Langston can add value.

Karen Inman, President/COO
Antis Roofing & Waterproofing, Irvine
In August 2016, Karen Inman joined Antis Roofing and Waterproofing as president and chief operating officer, where she provides overall leadership of the company, including all areas of operations, employee engagement and customer service. In this key executive role, she also supports the company’s longstanding history of charitable giving and mission to give back to the community. With more than 25 years of experience in corporate real estate executives, Inman started her career with one of the best engineering and construction firms in the industry, with positions in construction project management, and technology development and implementation. She then moved into the HOA industry, holding positions in IT, system development and implementation, and ultimately branch operations. Inman’s strong track record of operational success and strategic management uniquely equips her to lead and grow Antis. She is committed to providing exceptional service to every client, establishing sound operational practices and creating a high-performance culture among employees. Founded in 1989, Antis Roofing & Waterproofing Inc. provides contracting services to Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

She previously served as the Orange County office’s managing partner and was amongst the youngest partners to hold that title. Johnson is an accomplished securities and trial lawyer, and has received prolific recognition for her successes in and out of the courtroom. She was recently acknowledged by Law360 as one of The 25 Most Influential Women in Securities Law and Profiles in Diversity Journal named Johnson to its 14th annual “Women Worth Watching” List. This list recognizes women in leadership from law firms, corporations, nonprofits and government agencies in Europe and North America who are “blazing a trail for others to follow.”

Patty Juarez, National Diverse Segments Director
Wells Fargo, Irvine
Patty Juarez has an impressive 22+ year career at Wells Fargo. She joined the company right out of college and was accepted to their highly regarded Credit Management Training Program. Upon graduation, she joined the Santa Clara Valley office, which focused on doing business with technology companies in the Silicon Valley. After four years of being the top new business generator for several years, she was promoted to credit manager of her office which was over $1.2 billion in commitments. She was then asked to run a new Commercial Banking office in Anaheim. She staffed and grew that office at unseen rates in the industry. Juarez is a very successful senior banker and an admired manager, but she does not stop there. She also promotes and celebrates diversity in her workplace by ensuring her office environment is inclusive and welcoming of the many contributions of each member of her team.

Natalie Julien, Executive Director
Thomas House Shelter, Garden Grove
Natalie Julien has been with Thomas House Shelter since April 2015. Since Julien joined the nonprofit, her efforts have led to a growth in Thomas House’s corporate and personal sponsorship numbers, higher revenues for all fundraisers and an increase in new board members. Julien has also helped to increase communication efforts, raising more awareness for Thomas House in the public and amongst corporate partners. The mission of Thomas House is to provide a safe, supportive environment and the resources necessary for homeless families with children to remain together while empowering them to become independent and self-sufficient.

Pamela Jung, CEO
Healthcare Talent and Workforce Solutions Group, Foothill Ranch
Pamela Jung created Workforce Solutions Group (WSG) in 2001 with a primary focus on direct hire placement across all business sectors. A few years later, in response to the high demand for health care employees, she created HealthCare Talent and Workforce Solutions Group (HCT) as a separate brand dedicated exclusively to the health care market. HCT operates as its own entity under the WSG group of companies. Jung’s story has been filled with challenges ranging from workforce reductions and revenue loss; to successes, such as making a fastest-growing company list; to personal triumphs of creating a scholarship. Healthcare Talent and Workforce Solutions Group experienced tremendous growth from 2001 to 2007. Then, the economy took a downturn, Jung cut operating expenses, re-organized loans with banks and was forced to survive on a cash-only basis. In order to turn the company around, Jung focused primarily in the health care market as she felt it was recession proof. Her strategy worked as the company has grown to over $30.5 million with 60+ employees and offices in OC, LA and Northern California.

Manna Kadar, CEO/Founder
Manna Kadar Cosmetics, Irvine
Hailing from what is arguably the most fashionable city in the world, cosmetics guru Manna Kadar was born in Paris, France. Surrounded by the very best that fashion and beauty has to offer, Kadar developed a passion at a very young age for not only the finest beauty products on earth, but for the business behind the most cutting-edge brands. After years of careful research and development, in January 2012, Manna Kadar Cosmetics was finally born. A prestigious line of luxury products with the most cutting-edge color trends and the finest ingredients, Kanna Kadair Cosmetics are long-wearing and multifunctional. Adhering to the philosophy that less is more, Kadair created the Three-Step System to keep beauty simplified by achieving your look in seven minutes or less.

Jeanne Lorin, CEO
Beauty Society, Huntington Beach
In 2004, when Beauty Society was established, Founder Jeanne Lorin made a vow that Beauty Society would always be a company with a conscience. Not only to provide the best possible beauty products in quality, effectiveness and safety, but also to have an “everyone-wins” business model. A model where the consumer would receive the highest-performing products at prices the everyday family could afford. A company where corporate profits were not the focus, but rather, the success of the consumer and families — as families also benefit financially as the company grows. Beauty Society’s eco-friendly initiative is also like no other corporation in the country. The organization strives to be the benchmark of green consciousness.

Helen Norris, VP/Chief Information Officer Chapman University, Orange

Helen Norris has transformed information technology at Chapman University in three short years since her arrival. Understanding that successful outcomes begin with a strong vision and a stronger organization, Norris began by transforming the 70-member Information, Systems & Technology (IS&T) group under her leadership to be more customer-focused and less inwardly focused. Norris also led the highly successful implementation of a university-wide enterprise management system installation that had been struggling when she took the helm. With this new platform in place, Norris was then able to launch several cutting-edge innovations; to include a new mobile application; and also a new business intelligence dashboard, supported by a new state-of-the-art data warehouse capability. Given these very early successes, Norris was quickly promoted to the most senior leadership team and to a direct reporting relationship with the president of Chapman, Daniele Struppa.

Anoosheh Oskouian, President/CEO Ship & Shore Environmental Inc., Signal Hill

Anoosheh Oskouian launched her pollution control business in the fall of 2000, when the opportunity arose for her to reinvent what had been a metal fabricating company. Since then, Oskouian’s company has developed a comprehensive array of engineering and manufacturing capabilities. With increasing market demand on businesses to reduce operational costs as a driver, Oskouian has continuously expanded her company’s product lines and services. Geographically, growing industrial pollution abatement demand has resulted in new Ship & Shore locations across Canada, satellite sales/service offices in Europe and new offices in Singapore and China. With more than 50 professionals in the Long Beach headquarters and nearly 50 other professionals working at other locations, Ship & Shore has an impressive portfolio of repeat customers.

Gretchen Shoemaker, Chairwoman of the Board
Georgia’s Restaurant, Anaheim
Gretchen and George Shoemaker shared her dream of opening a restaurant. Eventually, they started a small catering business out of their kitchen, but after George passed, Gretchen closed up her catering business and retired from her job – there was no way she could open a restaurant without his presence at her side. That dream was passed on to her middle daughter, Nika and her husband, Marlon. When they decided to open their own business, Gretchen was ready to make her dream become a reality. In 2014, after a year of research and training, the family opened Georgia’s Restaurant in the Anaheim Packing District. Today, they serve soul food dishes based on family recipes. Within a short time, Georgia’s catering grew to include clients such as the city of Anaheim and Vans. Notable regulars of Georgia’s Restaurant include Anaheim Mayor Tom Tait.

Sandra Sholl, Chairman/CEO
MadaLuxé Group, Seal Beach
In 1990, Sandra Sholl established Carlen Enterprises, which quickly became a groundbreaking innovator under her direction and remains focused on driving significant business value for influential fashion brands through the secondary market. Carlen Enterprises was at the forefront of the hip hop era and became the go-to supplier for the most renowned companies in the category, as well as the first to introduce premium denim to the off-price market. In 2009, Sholl strategically entered the luxury market, building strong business partnerships with the industry’s most iconic European Maisons, whose names evoke true luxury. With this new timeless and sustainable business concept, MadaLuxé Group was born. MadaLuxé Group has become an innovative global leader in the luxury fashion space, as well as North America’s largest distributor of luxury fashion and accessories for men and women.

Maura Short, Real Estate Agent

Angela Sinickas, CEO
Sinickas Communications Inc., Laguna Hills
Angela Sinickas is one of the pioneers in the field of corporate communications — showing the financial impact on organizations of strategic, two-way communication between executives and their internal/external publics. She has been invited to speak not only at communication conferences, but also at business conferences, ranging from the Management Leadership Network in Belfast to the World Lithuanian Economic Conference. Her work has been recognized with 21 international Gold Quill Awards. The international reputation of Sinickas Communications Inc. has brought in unsolicited work from government agencies, organizations and corporations on six continents, including more than 25% of the Fortune 100 largest global companies. CEO Angela Sinickas has trained communicators to work in a more outcomes-focused way rather than output-focused, making them better business partners for company executives. Her firm also conducts focus groups, surveys and other research to provide baselines against which to measure progress.

Alexandra Spitz, Founder
The New Mom School, Newport Beach
Since the inception of The New Mom School (TNMS), formerly OC Mommy and Me, Founder Alexandra Spitz, has devoted her life to helping new moms in Orange County with OC’s premier educational support program for new moms. As a Certified Parent Educator, Newborn Specialist, Certified Positive Discipline Parent Educator and mom of two, Spitz is always looking ahead and has a big vision for the community. Her programs provide moms with access to high-quality, in-person support and education during this very crucial time. In just four years, TNMS has welcomed more than 1,500 moms to classes.

With numbers growing rapidly, Spitz is quickly realizing her goal of changing the culture of motherhood in Orange County to one where moms support and empower one another instead of tearing each other down. She is also an active philanthropist, helping many local charities.

Shana Spitzer, Real Estate Agent
Villa Real Estate, Newport Beach
Coming from the interior design business, Shana Spitzer expanded to selling real estate in 2010 when the market was at an all-time low. With dedication, persistence and the will to make a name for herself in the field of luxury residential real estate, Spitzer represented more than $25 million in transactions in 2016 alone. She joined forces with Laura Roche in 2012, and together, their team joined Villa Real Estate in 2014. Villa Real Estate was established in 2013 by the region’s leading luxury residential real estate professionals to ensure that clients in Coastal Orange County receive the most strategic, innovative and effective representation available in today’s market.

Cristen Stapp, Partner
Kitchen Table Marketing + PR, Newport Beach
From the founding of Kitchen Table Marketing + PR, Cristen Stapp has been a key player in Orange County’s public relations and marketing sector, generating media coverage and marketing success for clients ranging from local lifestyle centers to national children’s toy product companies and five-star resorts. Stapp is well-respected for her professionalism and talents by colleagues, media and clients alike. Through her work with Kitchen Table Marketing + PR, Stapp has given her time to numerous causes, including Project Hope Alliance and The Foundation for the Unde防治ated/irrelevant Week. In addition, she is an active member of the CHOC Glass Slipper Guild.

Carolyn Stephens, Associate Director/Chief of Staff
UCI Institute for Innovation, Irvine
In 2013, UCI Chancellor Howard Gillman, together with benefactor Don Beall, established a vision for UCI as a model for university and industry engagement toward the creation of an “innovation district” in the heart of Orange County. UCI Applied Innovation opened in 2014 to spearhead this effort. Significant changes had to be made on campus to create a more collaborative culture, requiring an internal champion with the organizational and interpersonal skills to drive interdisciplinary partnerships. In January 2015, Carolyn Stephens accepted the herculean task of implementing these changes and joined the leadership of Applied Innovation. In two years, her leadership has led to increases in industry engagement with UCI and streamlined UCI’s technology licensing process to move at the speed of business. Beyond being the driving force behind the build out of Applied Innovation, Stephens is taking up the challenge of addressing the needs of the regional innovation and entrepreneurial ecosystem in order for the county to attract, nurture and retain startups.

Paula Steurer, Founder
Sterling Public Relations, Corona del Mar
Celebrating its ninth anniversary, Sterling Public Relations specializes in comprehensive public relations, marketing and branding services for companies targeting luxury lifestyle clientele. Jennifer Stewart-Tai, Founder/President
City Girl Prepper, Los Alamitos
City Girl Prepper is changing the way women discuss preparedness. By offering emergency preparedness education and ready-made supplies in a home party setting, women are gathering together to learn how to handle any emergency like a boss. First responders recommend that everyone has at least 72 hours of supplies, and City Girl Prepper is helping women and families get prepared. Through Jennifer Stewart-Tai’s commitment to the business, City Girl Prepper has more than doubled its sales revenue from last year and has added corporate accounts to the client list. City Girl Prepper was selected to showcase at the National CERT Conference with more than 600 emergency managers attending from across the nation. Stewart-Tai has also begun to add sales affiliates to feature City Girl Prepper in their stores and websites.

Susie Storey, VP of Sales
Dealersocket, San Clemente
Susie Storey began her career at DealerSocket in 2009 as an executive sales manager, selling the company’s integrated dealership technology. Although she works in a male-dominated industry, Storey’s hard work led her to quickly outpace expectations, becoming the company’s top sales representative and increasing DealerSocket sales in the Pacific Northwest by more than 40%. Her strategic contributions led to a promotion to sales director of the Central Region, where she continued to thrive. She soon advanced to managing the coveted East Coast Region, reaching 100% of DealerSocket’s sales goals. Today, she is DealerSocket’s vice president of sales, where she leads a Customer Success Department to help DealerSocket’s customers better leverage the technology solutions. The department she leads has grown by 87 people in 2017, with the addition of the Customer Success Management Team. Stowery guides her team to a 98% customer satisfaction and retention rate among all 11,000+ of DealerSocket’s dealership customers. DealerSocket provides dealerships with a single automotive platform containing marketing, sales, service, customer experience and data mining solutions.

Elissa Stowell, Real Estate Agent
Surterre Properties, Newport Beach

Elissa Stowell outsold all other most prolific agents selling homes in Orange County, and is continually recognized as one of the top producing agents at Surterre. Her production numbers, combined with her outgoing personality, landed her a role as part of a team shooting a real estate show for a major network that will be airing in 2017. Stowell is a familiar face in the small community of Corona del Mar. When she is not volunteering in many of the local functions and charity events, she is busy maintaining her title as one of the top three sales people in Corona del Mar, and has sold over $400 million during her 14-year career. As the founder of Stowell and Associates, Stowell is able to assist even more buyers through her luxury group with speed and efficiency. Surterre Properties is Orange County’s leading luxury real estate brokerage.

Mary-Christine “M.C.” Sungalía, Partner
Haynes and Boone LLP, Costa Mesa

M.C. Sungalía joined Haynes and Boone LLP in June 2015 as the law firm’s first appellate partner in California. She is a key contributor to the firm’s women’s initiatives; spearheaded numerous pro bono projects and has been involved in groundbreaking roles, publications and community activities. Sungalía will be recognized in late 2017 by the Orange County Women Lawyer’s Association as the Attorney of the Year. From 2010 to 2016, The Daily Journal has named her one of California’s Top Woman Lawyers. In addition, she received the 2015 and 2016 California Lawyer Attorney of the Year (CLAY) Awards from California Lawyer Magazine and the 2015 Attorney of the Year Award from the OC Hispanic Bar Association for her lifetime pro bono appellate work. Sungalía was recently named director-at-large for the Orange County Bar Association. She chairs the Appellate Law Section Task Force that helps find and currently staffs the civil appellate self-help clinic at the Orange County Court of Appeal.

Nicole Suydam, CEO
Second Harvest Food Bank of OC, Irvine

Nicole Suydam has dedicated her 20-year career to the nonprofit sector, working for local and national organizations helping people in need. As chief executive officer of Second Harvest Food Bank, the largest hunger-relief organization in Orange County, Suydam and her team are providing the equivalent of 25 million meals to 180 charitable organizations, feeding 200,000 people each month. Under her leadership, Suydam has expanded the number of meals provided from 14.9 million to 20.1 million, focusing on nutritious food and fresh produce. She has also been instrumental in increasing total organizational revenue, including the value of donated food, from $35 million to $49 million. Suydam led the creation of a new strategic plan for the year, establishing the food bank’s Bold Goal to grow to 30 million meals by 2021, putting them on pace to close the entire meal gap in Orange County by 2025.

Naz Tadjbakhsh, Director of Organization & Talent Development
Artemis Search Partners, Irvine

Naz Tadjbakhsh started with Artemis, a recruiting agency, as an intern in 2012 while finishing her undergraduate degree at UC! Even as an intern, Tadjbakhsh’s entrepreneurial spirit and exceptional ability to spot opportunities for improving operations were beyond her years. She implemented operational workflows and processes, designed a hiring strategy with interview guides, and created an employee career development. The impact Tadjbakhsh had as an intern allowed Artemis to grow to a point where the company was able to hire her on full-time basis after she completed her undergraduate degree. After working for a year and a half at Artemis, Tadjbakhsh made the decision to pursue her passion for learning by attending graduate school. Artemis was again able to bring Tadjbakhsh back full-time as a strategic growth partner for organization development, talent management and operations after she completed her degree. Since returning to Artemis, Tadjbakhsh has revamped every segment of the business, including operations, financials and HR.

Dr. Betty Uribe, EVP, Greater Southern California Division

When Betty Uribe was recruited to California Bank & Trust in 2011 for the purpose of conducting a massive turnaround, not even she could imagine that just five years later, she would be presenting to 30 banking executives from around the world—detailing how she led a “best-in-class” turnaround. In 2016, the best year in the history of the bank, they had a 40%-year-over-year, pre-tax profit increase while every major financial metric—ROE, ROA, Efficiency Ratio and Revenue Growth—all saw significant improvements. And, that is only half of the story. Uribe has just published a book based on her dissertation study on Values. The book instantly became an international best-seller and has been presented to world leaders, while continuing Uribe’s goal of raising funds to provide scholarships for 100 underserved high school kids to attend college on each continent. California Bank & Trust is a full-service bank specializing in business banking.

Carla Vargas, COO
Orange County United Way, Irvine

Carla Vargas has served in various capacities at Orange County United Way since 1999. In her previous role as senior vice president of community impact—before her promotion to chief operating officer—Vargas spent 24 months working with the nonprofit’s board of directors and community stakeholders on a strategic planning and community engagement process to develop 10-year, community-level change goals for Orange County in the areas of Education, Income, Health and Housing, and a 10-year strategic plan called “FACE 2024” based on the model of “Collective Impact.” She has realigned United Way’s funding, created an advocacy and public policy plan, and has developed new key collaboration and public education strategies in support of the FACE 2024 goals. Most recently, she led the development and execution of the organization’s first FACE 2024 “Community Report,” which will become the annual “scorecard” to demonstrate progress against the 10-year goals.
