MOST INFLUENTIAL
Minority Attorneys
IN LOS ANGELES
W ERE PLEASED TO SHARE TWO IMPORTANT CUSTOM CONTENT SECTIONS WITH OUR READERS IN THIS ISSUE.

First we have our Influential Minority Attorneys custom section. With Los Angeles the melting pot that it is, we’re truly a national leader when it comes to influential minorities – and the field of law is no exception. There are some particularly stellar minority attorneys in the LA region who happen to be from a broad cultural spectrum. We accepted nominations from our readers and legal experts from some of the top firms and businesses in the region. From there, we narrowed down those considered to be particularly impactful on the legal scene while serving as trusted advisors in the LA region, along with maintaining the highest professional and ethical standards, and for contributions to the Los Angeles business and legal community at large.

Next up, we have our annual Economic Forecast & Trends supplement. And it couldn’t come at a better time. Positioned as we are less than a month into 2019, the business landscape of Los Angeles comes with a number of questions. Will the current administration make good on its promises for a continued shift towards business-friendliness? Will the state of California prosper as it faces new tax changes? Which fiscal trends are here to stay and which are temporary?

To help explore the answers for these and many other questions on the minds of our readers and the LA business community at large, we assembled our first event of the year, the Economic Forecast & Trends on Tuesday, January 22nd, and it was great to look back at what made the headlines in 2018 and engage in some insightful dialogue about how the economy will be impacted this coming year.

I’d like to thank our panelists and moderators for their generous support.

Best regards,

Anna Magzanyan

Congratulations to

We are delighted to recognize the outstanding work of our colleagues, and thank them for their service to our clients, and to the Los Angeles community.

Hamid Namazie represents Bank of America (BoA) in some of its biggest and most innovative financing deals and has played a lead role in crafting legislation coast-to-coast that could impact the commercial lending landscape in the years to come. When BoA first considered establishing international asset-based credit facilities a decade ago, they needed a lawyer with the necessary skills and acumen. Namazie stepped in and advised BoA on its first-ever multiproductive asset-based financing deal, which involved lending to Targa Corporation in the U.S., Canada, the UK, Singapore and Taiwan.

The success of that deal paved the way for Namazie, who now handles many of BoA’s most important and challenging international lending transactions. For example, he recently represented the bank in a high-profile, $1.6 billion credit facility that provided the multinational toy and game manufacturer, Mattel, Inc. with cash infusions in Spain, Germany, the Netherlands, France, Canada and the U.S.

Participants who complete the program will have fulfilled the requirements to lead mediations throughout California.

The Los Angeles County Bar Association (LACBA), one of the largest voluntary metropolitan bar associations in the country, is introducing a new 40-Hour Mediation Training program with a curriculum designed to fulfill the training requirements of the California Dispute Resolution Programs Act. Upon completion of the program, attendees will have met the mediator training and educational requirements to serve as panelists throughout California.

Registration for the training program installments is now open and each session is limited to 40 attendees. Those interested in registering for the program can visit www.lacba.org/40-hour for more information.

“LACBA’s 40-Hour Training program is important because it helps attorneys interested in incorporating mediations into their practice obtain the necessary credentials to serve as effective mediators,” said Seth Chavez, director of LACBA’s Attorney-Client Mediation and Arbitration Service, which will oversee the program. “The program has been designed to be inclusive and would be particularly relevant for business leaders and others in the community without law degrees who would like to acquire the skills and fundamentals of mediation so they can put them to practice in their businesses or communities.”

“The Los Angeles County Bar Association has been at the forefront of providing the preeminent mediation training programs for years,” said Jack Gorte, a lecturer in law at USC Gould School of Law specializing in mediation and academic director of LACBA’s 40-Hour Mediator Training program. “LACBA’s 40-Hour Training program is impactful and practical for today’s evolving field of mediation because it was developed to meet the California Dispute Resolution Programs Act requirements while incorporating real-world experience of mediation experts.”

The training program introduces those who are interested in mediation to the core principles and methods of alternative dispute resolution and provide a strong foundation in mediation skills through lecture, small group exercises, and role-playing.

Each attendee who successfully completes the training program will receive a certification reflecting this education and training. Lawyers attending the training program will receive 40 hours of Continuing Legal Education credit, including four hours of Ethics credit.

Rich in both theory and practice, the training will cover the nature of conflict, history of mediation, structure and management of the mediation process, intake and convening, mediation models, cultural awareness and diversity, legal requirements and ethics, maintaining neutrality, communication skills, negotiation, breaking impasse, closure and drafting agreements.

LACBA, under its then existing Dispute Resolution Services and Center for Civic Mediation, had previously operated the region’s popular 30-Hour Mediator Training Program from the 1990’s through 2016.

The Los Angeles County Bar Association (LACBA) is one of the largest voluntary metropolitan bar associations in the nation and has nearly 20,000 members. LACBA is engaged in advancing the administration of justice and meeting the professional needs of lawyers. For more information on LACBA, visit lacba.org.
